

Other networking events

Networking can be defined as the cultivation of productive relationships to advance a given objective. Throughout the year, COHRED plans to organize a variety of event that provide great networking and learning opportunities to those interested in research for health and innovation with the aim of promoting and creating change. We regularly hold:

- Smaller events (with innovative formats) piggy-backing on key events in the sector
- Workshops: holding regional workshops which have the aim of providing researchers with key skills in dealing with the private sector, or helping with knowledge translation or giving fair research contracting workshops, etc...